

SPEAKER CONDITIONS AND COPYRIGHT STATEMENT

We will expressly ask every speaker not to highlight any company-, brand- and product-names in the presentation, but to use chemical terms or INCI-names for raw materials and actives and refrain from repeatedly showing a company-logo or using the presentation for advertising messages.

Every selected speaker will have to declare as follows (will be requested from every speaker after he/she has been selected):

1. The Speaker grants Co-mana the right to publish lecture documents of the Speaker, including all annexes, on the website www.cesio-congress.eu, as well as in the subsequent reports to the event. Above-mentioned rights shall be granted without compensation and are subject to revocation at any time.
2. The Speaker warrants that he/she is the holder of all the rights required for his/her lecture activity as well as the rights granted under no. 1, particularly, the right of performance under § 19 of the German Copyright Law (UrhG) and the right to publish under §19a UrhG;
3. The lecture material and all related annexes are free from all third party rights, which could impede granting said rights that are object of the present agreement.
4. If the works have already been published, the speaker is requested to declare that the copyright holder raises no objection to publication by Co-mana, no third party personal rights are violated by the use of the lecture materials within the framework of the present agreement, and all pictured individuals are in agreement with the contractual use of the work.
5. The Speaker agrees to indemnify Co-mana, upon first request, regarding all third party claims, particularly any claims based on the alleged violation of copyrights or personal rights, brought against Co-mana in connection with the exercise of the rights being the object of the present agreement. Co-mana shall be entitled to take any suitable steps to defend itself against third party claims or to enforce its legal rights. Any such steps taken by the Speaker shall be taken following prior consultation between the Speaker and Co-mana. The present release also covers the reimbursement of any costs incurred by Co-mana as a result of the legal enforcement or defence of its rights.
